Notice to all Persons having Demands on the Government.

PENSIONS, BOUNTY, PRIZE-MONEY, PATENTS, Pay for Vouchers, Scrip, Back Pay, Lost Horse and Spoliation Claims obtained by the undersigned, who will attend to all other business before the Departments at Washington City.

Soldiers becoming disabled or diseased while in the service, are entitled to a Pension. Those who served in any war previous to the 3d of March, 1855, are entitled to Bounty Land. Those who served in the Navy during the late war, and were legally attached to a vessel or squadron on duty, although not participating in the taking of prizes, are entitled to Prize Money. In many Indian Treaties provision is made for payment of Spoliation Claims out of Annuities. To collect the large number of such claims now owned in this country,—for the settlement of which no similar provision has been made by treaty—demand should be made at once therefor at the proper Department, and, if final[ly] lost, recommendation will be made to Congress to pass an act retaining the amount thereof out of the Annuities.

WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear,

It is entirely noiseless;

A patented device prevents its being turned backwards;

The needle cannot be set wrong;

Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;

It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1862. For particulars, enquire of

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 1866.

One of the most exciting topics of discussion in political circles (here and all over the country) still is—will the President and the dominant majority in Congress be able to get along without a quarrel on the great question of reconstruction? New light is thrown every day upon it, yet I am no more able to answer such a question now—if it must be answered with definiteness—than I was two months ago.

One of your Senators, Mr. Nesmith, has taken occasion to define his position in the Senate. He has put in his bid at once for the favor of the President, and I don't know as anybody here wonders at it. As he may doubt whether he has a constituency in Oregon, he naturally takes to what he believes to be strong support here. He goes with the President as he understands him. However, no one supposed that Mr. Nesmith was a radical, and he disappoints nobody in the Senate by his talk against negro suffrage. As his colleague does not assert that he is for negro suffrage he cannot carry that issue into Oregon politics. Mr. Henderson voted squarely against the suffrage bill that passed the House. I do not know but he might have voted for a bill establishing qualified suffrage—whether he would or not the President has said that he would not have experienced any difficulty in signing such a bill. But I set out with the question—will the President separate from Congress on the great issue of the time? Congress is certainly willing to concede something if the President is in the conciliatory mood. The immediate danger is upon the negro suffrage question, as involved in the bill passed by the House. The President has carefully concealed his purpose in regard to the bill as it has not yet passed the Senate. He says frankly that he does not like the bill. He would greatly prefer qualified suffrage, and he thinks that it would have been wiser to have avoided any agitation on the subject at this time. This is what he told Mr. Scofield, of Pennsylvania, one night last week. Mr. Scofield after an argument on the subject said, "Well, Mr. President, if we can't agree, still we shall stick to you; we shall not let go of you!" The President's reply was very good natured—"And I shall hold on to you!" I do not believe that on this question there will be a breach. If it is inevitable it will come on the question of admitting Tennessee to representation in Congress. Before long a proposition will be made to admit the Tennessee representatives to seats. Speaker Colfax, as is well known, favors the movement. One remarkable fact is worth mentioning in this connection—so far the Republican members stick closely together on the great measure. The Senate passed the Freedmen's Bureau bill last week and by an overwhelming majority. The vote stood 37 to 10. Every Republican Senator present in the Senate chamber gave his prompt vote for the bill. Mr. Williams, of Oregon, voted for it. Mr. Nesmith, I think, was not present. But this strong radical measure was passed by 27 majority. The bill puts tremendous power into the hands of the President. He can take care of the freedmen in the recently rebellious States no matter if they (the States) are admitted to their old places in the Union. Of course lawyers understand that "may" in such a law is equivalent to "shall." But our rulers in these late years have been a good deal in the habit of executing laws according to their own notions, but if the House pass the bill alluded to, the President will have full power over the freedmen to protect them in the future. The strong vote in favor of the bill in the Senate, will show the President that there is no likelihood of a division in the Republican ranks. They will stick together they are not ready for disintegration and dissolution.

Some remarks have fallen from the lips of the President during the last two months which would seem to indicate that he thinks that all parties are about to dissolve and new parties arise. He said to a personal and political friend: "It is a good time to sow seed, for the parties are dead." This was his belief for several months but the elections last fall somewhat startled him. They looked very much as if the party was not dead or in the way of dying. So, too, these votes in the House and Senate look like stringent party discipline. In the Senate there are only two Republican Senators who occupy an independent position, I refer to Mr. Doolittle and Cowan. Dixon, of Connecticut, showed a disposition to take a place a little outside of his party for a few days but he soon went back among his friends. These facts are significant.

Everybody are looking forward to the elections in New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island, which takes place in March and April. It is said that great pains is being taken to obtain from the State nominating Conventions the adoption of resolutions approving of the President's policy—that is, favoring the immediate admission of the rebellious States. Whether this be so or not, I hear that the radicals in Congress are very busy in trying to secure the adoption of resolutions approving of their course—of the position taken by Congress on this subject.

If the State of Connecticut votes Republican, Congress will refuse to admit any of the Southern claimants at the present session, and will go into the fall elections upon the issue that it is dangerous to admit them till further guarantees have been received. If, on the other hand, Connecticut should, for the first time in nearly ten years, give its vote to the opposition, Congress would be alarmed, and a majority might be found, before the final adjournment, favoring immediate admission of the Southern members.

Gen. Terry's order in Virginia, and Gen. Sickles' order in South Carolina in reference to the freedmen, have given the utmost satisfaction to the radicals. They show that the President intends to protect the freedmen against the devices of their old masters. Wherever the State Legislatures make a distinction between blacks and whites in punishment for offences, the military step in and take entire charge of the cases, try them and punish, where punishment is necessary. The people of the South do not like this, but as it comes from the President—as he is responsible for it—they cannot complain. It is not of Congressional origin. If this thing could be relied upon in the future, Congress would act more promptly on the question of restoration, but it seems to think that it is safer to make certain Constitutional amendments. It looks to me, however, as if but one of them would be adopted—and that is the one which has been discussed for a such a length of time in the House.

The section of the Constitution relating to representation in Congress must be amended, for slavery no longer exists, and the three-fifths clause will not apply. As it is to be changed, the universal feeling at the North is that the white people in the South shall not have the benefit of their colored population as a basis of representation so long as the colored men are considered unfit to exercise the elective franchise. With such an amendment in the Constitution, the South cannot, even by joining hands with the Copperheads of the North, ever hope to gain a majority in Congress. Such a thing as repudiation will be out of the question. The whole country seems to favor this amendment. Journals like the New York Evening Post, that are very conservative, and which support the President's restoration policy, also support this proposition to amend the Constitution.

The great event of the week is the semi-official account of the President's views on the Constitutional Amendment and negro suffrage. I think it was made public for the purpose of influencing public opinion and congressional action. On Saturday Mr. Dixon, Senator from Connecticut, had a long interview with the President, and the result was that they drew up a paper giving the President's views on the questions alluded to. The President not only gave his consent to the publication of the paper, but he reviewed it and gave it first to the correspondent of the New York Times. It was afterwards recalled and sent to the agent of the Associated Press, so that it would be published in all the leading papers. There is no doubt, therefore, of the authenticity of the document. It came from the President. Of course it creates a good deal of excitement in Congress, especially among the radical Republicans. There is no difficulty in reference to the Constitutional Amendment. The Republicans can accept his proposition to base representation upon voters without trouble. The only difficulty is with the President's opinions in regard to negro suffrage. The Republicans have committed themselves to that doctrine in the District of Columbia. The President himself took grounds in favor of qualified, colored suffrage no longer ago than last fall, in his interview with Major Stearns of Massachusetts. He now says he thinks that negro suffrage is suicidal to the black man. The radicals do not know how to get along with this statement of opinions. It is possible that an issue will be created by the action of the Senate. If it amends the House bill by an intelligence qualification he may sign it. I do not think that the bill will be killed by this statement of the President's—it will pass in some shape beyond a peradventure. Then we shall soon come to the crisis. If the President returns the bill there will be trouble, and the extent of it no one can at present estimate.

The President delays to make an appointment of collector of the port of New York because he cannot see what Congress is going to do on reconstruction. A shrewd member from New York, who has had several interviews with the President on the subject, tells me he is thoroughly convinced that the appointment of collector will indicate where the President is going, and I think he is right. Old Mr. Blair wants him to appoint a Democrat now, but the President waits. If he does appoint a Democrat it will show that he means to go over to the opposition, or the better class among them. But he has not done that yet, and I think he will not do it.

Mr. Nesmith introduced a bill into the Senate sometime since (January 6th, I think is the date,) granting lands to the State of Oregon to aid in the construction of a military road from Corvallis to Aquina Bay. It was referred to the committee on public lands, and on the 26th instant was reported back with sundry amendments. As it now stands alternate sections of unoccupied lands, for three sections in width on each side of the road, are appropriated. As the bill originally stood one sections were given. Other important changes were made by the committee. The road under this bill has to be so constructed that it can be used as a wagon road.

The House has sent back the constitutional amendment to the reconstruction committee with all the amendments offered in the House. It will soon come back however, and it will pass by the requisite two-thirds majority. It may be modified in some degree, but substantially this proposition (which has been sent back) will be adopted.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 9, 1866.

UNION STATE CONVENTION.

The voters of the several counties of Oregon who have been and are in favor of maintaining the supremacy of the Union, the Constitution and the laws of the United States, against all opposition, are respectfully invited to hold Conventions according to the usual custom, for the election of Delegates to a Union State Convention, to be held at Corvallis on the 29th day of March, 1866, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Governor, Member of Congress, Secretary of State, State Treasurer and State Printer. We respectfully recommend the holding of County Conventions throughout the State on Saturday, the 17th day of March, 1866, at which time Delegates to the State Convention can be selected. It is also recommended that the precinct meetings be held on Saturday, the 10th day of March. Delegates to the State Convention from each Judicial District, assembled at the time of holding said Convention, will nominate candidates for Judge and Prosecuting Attorney, where vacancies exist.

The several counties are entitled to send Delegates to the State Convention as follows:

Baker	4	Lane	7
Benton	4	Linn	10
Clackamas	7	Marion	14
Clatsop	2	Multnomah	13
Coos	1	Polk	6

W. C. WHITSON, Secretary.

The Position of Congress.

There is a paper published at Salem which is known throughout the State as the organ of a few beggarly placemen, and seedy politicians, and which is guided by no motive except that of [illegible] worship, and this whether its hero be right or wrong. There are none but who must have observed that for months that journal has dared to have no opinions of its own. It has been on every side of every question that has arisen, and as often as its inconsistency has been exposed, and its editor nonplussed by his folly, it has placed, or attempted to place itself right on the record by jumping from its absurd position to that held by the President of the United States. When any question has been discussed in advance of the delivery of the President's opinion in relation to it, the journal under consideration has invariably [illegible] squarely down from its position the moment it discovered that the person who is the object of its worship did not agree with the sentiments it had expressed. Its conductors have always been, and are still, actuated by a heroic if not laudable [illegible] to keep abreast pace with the President, regardless of the danger that attends a race which [illegible] often be run at breathless and headlong speed. To illustrate by examples, we may mention its course on the questions of national currency and negro suffrage. It went entirely astray on the first of these questions, stopping frequently in its devious course to intrench itself in some fixed position, but as often abandoning it and continuing its tortuous march. At last having become hopelessly lost in the perplexing labyrinth of its own ignorance and folly, it gave up [illegible] from every position it had taken, and sought [illegible] in springing to the side of [illegible] and the Secretary of the Treasury. Its course in relation to negro suffrage was very similar. Standing on philosophic (?) ground, it [illegible] the heresy [illegible] ultimately [illegible] the Copperhead doctrine that this is exclusively a white man's Government, and pronounced in the strongest terms against the policy of extending the elective franchise on any condition or [illegible] conditions to the blacks. But finding that its worshiped leader, the President, was in favor of [illegible] and that he had said to a colored delegation that this was "their country as much as anybody's country," it hastened to eat its own [illegible] his opinion as its [illegible] views on all subjects are pointed to as its only [illegible] authority. His absolute infallibility is the fundamental and only doctrine in the creed of the politicians' journal. Never [illegible] in the divinity and religion of his prophet than that [illegible] has in the inerrability of him whom it takes as its guide. The President has lately changed his views on negro suffrage, and is now opposed to any extension of the elective franchise; hence we suppose his worshiper and defender at Salem will soon unsay what it said on this subject a few [illegible] ago. Now, we have no objection whatever to the [illegible] of that subservient journal in taking this [illegible]. It is welcome to abase itself, to throw away its [illegible], [illegible] consistency and to play the clown to the caprices of [illegible] it chooses to worship; but when it vilely [illegible] others for presuming to have opinions of their own, and for having the temerity to question the infallibility of one who is but human, we beg leave to interpose an earnest objection. We question the right of no one to let others think for him, or to be as absurd and inconsistent as he pleases, but an equal right belongs to all who will use it to take an independent stand, and be governed by their own convictions of right and duty.

We shall not endeavor to fight the politicians' organ with its own favorite weapons of low scurrility, vile personal abuse, and vulgar epithets. In the copious and facile use of its peculiar dialect, it can [illegible] literally, have no equal.—Where could Thersites find a peer?

The Statesman is indignant how wrongfully the Legislatures of the loyal States and nine-tenths of the loyal people of the country ventured to question the perfect wisdom of the President's policy. We [illegible] not differ with him in the slightest particular. We must stand up for the President against all who disapprove any part of his policy, and [illegible] would [illegible] anything not strictly in harmony with his individual opinions. It is wrong to insinuate that Congress or the people should have a voice in settling the questions growing out of the late civil war. The business of the Executive is not merely to enforce the laws, but also to make them. Congress has nothing to do except to admit the delegations elected under the regime the President has established. This done, the work of reconstruction will be thought complete. It will not do for Congress to stop and inquire whether the revolted States are in a condition to be restored to all their rights. It is unconstitutional to impose any check on rebel [illegible] or to provide for the protection of the friendless freedmen. Congress is guilty of usurpation because it insists on measures calculated to give security to all parts of the country. The President must be sustained right or wrong, and Congress and the people must not question his unbounded wisdom.

This is the doctrine of the Federal organ. It is not the doctrine of the Union party. That party will commend and sustain the President when, in its judgment, he is right, but it will not go with him when it thinks him wrong.

There is a persistent effort on the part of the Salem paper to mislead its readers as to the cause of the difference between Congress and the President. It reiterates its former assertion that Congress holds that the revolted States are out of the Union. We showed last week that this is false. When Stevens said in his late speech that "they must come in as new States or remain as conquered provinces," he disclaimed the right to speak for any one but himself. He took especial pains to declare that he was not speaking for Congress or the Union party. He merely declared his own sentiments, and was alone responsible for his opinions. Congress never concurred in his views and has never declared the Southern States out of the Union.

Both Houses have lately adopted a resolution to the effect that "no Senators or Representatives shall be admitted from the States lately in insurrection until Congress shall have declared such States entitled to representation." This resolution says nothing about the admission of States. It does not declare that any States are out of the Union. It simply says that members from no one of the eleven rebellious States shall be received into either House until Congress shall consent—not to the admission of the States into the Union—but to the admission of such members to seats in its halls. The House Committee on Reconstruction has very lately recommended that the Tennessee delegation be admitted, and it is announced that in pursuance of the resolution above quoted, they will soon be declared entitled to their seats. Not a word is said about admitting the States into the Union. The assumption, then, is false that Congress has taken the ground that the States are out of the Union and "must come in as new States or remain as conquered provinces."

Still another point. Senator Sherman in a late speech advises all members who may hold the doctrine of "dead States" to give it up, and not proceed further on the theory that the eleven States are out of the Union. This good advice was intended for the few who like Sumner and Stevens have stood out for that idea from the first. Sherman himself never was a believer in that fanciful doctrine. Subsequently to this speech, we find him voting for the resolution not to admit the Southern members until their States shall have been declared entitled to representation. After having protested against the doctrine that those States were out of the Union, would Senator Sherman stultify himself by voting for a resolution based on the theory that they were out? Did not Senator Sherman know the nature of the resolution he was voting for? The truth is the joint resolution not to admit the Southern members for the present, had no reference to the status of States. Congress does not claim that the States are out of the Union.

Where then was the cause of dispute? It lay in the assumption of the President that Congress could not legislate for the eleven States while they remained unrepresented, and in the earnest, persistent determination of the Executive to have the Southern members immediately admitted. The feeling on the subject was intensified by a speech from the President which no right-minded person can read without the deepest mortification. The whole country sustained Congress in its resolution not to admit the rebellious members of the Southern delegations; and the President seeing the determination of the people, took early occasion to declare that he did not wish disloyal men to obtain seats in Congress. All Southern members who can take the test oath will no doubt soon be admitted; but the President will not soon see the admission of those who have been pardoned by him in conformity with, and as a part of his plan of speedy reconstruction.

In the Depths of Doubt.

The dapper little autocrat of the Democracy is in a lamentable quandary—cant tell whether to admit President Johnson to full fellowship with the Democratic crew or to spurn him. In view of the veto and his speech to the Washington mob, Jimmy thinks the act can be accepted, though perhaps not the man. In view of Johnson's subsequent [illegible] to Cox, his former hard opinions of the armed Democracy of the South, and the fact that he don't yet restore [illegible] corpus, nor remove the military rule over some of Jimmy's colleagues, Jimmy thinks he can endorse neither the man or his acts. In view of Avery's twenty dollar pieces, Jimmy thinks it is policy to steer just as near between endorsement and condemnation as the nature of the case will admit, and wait for something to turn up. Just at present, Jimmy is sorely puzzled to guess what is coming next. While the frail bark of Democracy is tossing about with its freight of "eternal principles," among the reefs and breakers of doubt, Jimmy thinks it unsafe to take on a pilot who has not been all the time a consistent and honorable pirate, in the Confederate service. Johnson has not the necessary credentials and after all, Jimmy don't know but that he would just as soon wreck the Confederate craft, freight, crew and all, as to steer them out of the breakers. Poor Jimmy sees the necessity of very soon coming to a decision, while the danger of deciding wrongly is so imminent that Jimmy is in such perplexity as is pitiable to look upon. A decision too soon, may thump his craft into splinters upon the nearest rock, while a decision too late, may engulph it beneath the breakers that come roaring and surging on in the distance. While Jimmy is in doubt whether to steer this way or that or to take on a pilot or reject one, he is freshly alarmed lest some of his subordinates among the crew, may seize the helm or invite Johnson on board and thus precipitate all the dangers he fears. To forestall such indiscretion, Jimmy has issued instructions to the crew, enjoining strict subordination and profound silence. Not a man is to say a word above his breath, for or against Johnson, until the commander and his officers have, in solemn council, determined upon his worthiness. Take the situation as he will, Jimmy finds the perplexities more numerous and ugly than he ever found in engineering his famous porpoise exhibition, or in procuring spotless dickies.

State Items.

The Mountaineer says business in the Dalles is beginning to stir and the spring trade is about fairly to open. Several parties are engaged in forwarding goods to Wallula for the Montana mines. Several trains have also been started for Canyon City and the Middle Fork country. The retail trade is much better than for many months.

Mr. James Walker, late partner of Mr. Waldron, will, in a few days, start a train of twenty-eight animals, [illegible] for the Blackfoot mines.

The cars on the Dalles and Celilo railroad, though making two or three trips daily, are unable to transport all the freight offering for the upper country.

A gentleman who has lately passed through the upper part of the valley, says that in several of the neighborhoods, he heard complaints of the loss of cattle, from the effects of the hard winter and lack of sufficient feed.

2 b kontinnerd in the neckst ishoo.

The appointment of delegates in the Confederate Convention of Benton county, gives over one-third to the Soap Creek and Long Tom Confederacy. There is very little chance for a "Johnson" demonstration in Benton, especially since Jimmy sent them orders not to endorse anybody or anything, in precinct or county conventions, but leave that matter to the Autocrat and his associates in the Confederate State Convention.

Our principles are firmly established and thoroughly understood.—O'Meara's Jimmycrat.

A slight mistake there, Jimmy. Your principles were completely overturned by the result of the rebellion—but they are thoroughly understood and thoroughly dead and damned.

FROM GAY TO GRAVE.—The Red Bluff Independent says they are going to give a ball, down there, to raise funds to fix up their graveyard. Rather an original expedient, but we suggest it as a good one for the Confederate State Convention to put in practice.

ALTERING THE CONSTITUTION.—In his farewell address Washington says: "The basis of our political system, is the right of the people to make and to alter their Constitutions of Government."

Idaho News.

We make the following extracts from a letter to the Mountaineer, dated Boise City, February 25, 1866:

The number of mills running at Rocky Bar, on Bear creek, is three; Wilson Waddingham & Co., ten stamps; Idaho Company, ten stamps; Pittsburg Gold & Silver Mining Company, ten stamps; and on Red Warrior, one and a half miles from Rocky Bar, the Victor Gold & Silver Mining Company, fifteen stamps; Benson, Harris & Co.'s mill, ten stamps. The week before last, the latter after six days' run, crushing rock from the Wide West lode, cleaned up over one hundred pounds of gold, (after retorted,) worth, say, in cash, $16,500. Wilson Waddingham is crushing rock from Confederate Star lode, and is making almost as well. The Idaho Company have a fine lode also, and probably take out an average of $6,000 a week, while their returns have been as high as $14,000 in a single week. The Pittsburg Company are also crushing Confederate Star rock and doing well. The Victor Company keep their business very close, and all we can learn is that the mill is paying well. The Yuba District is eighteen miles north-east of Rocky Bar, and there the ledges are astonishing, and it is likely to produce a smile of skepticism, and a doubt of my credibility were I to tell the whole truth. Still I make not the slightest exaggeration, and do not, in fact, go nearly as large when I mention the Leonora, nine feet wide, and very rich in free gold; Willamette, ten feet wide, gold and silver; Silver Tide, twelve or fourteen feet; Atlanta, ten to fifteen feet; Cleopatra, another splendid lead; Minerva, and dozens of others. Some, there, represent lodes as being thirty or forty feet wide, but I do not of my own knowledge know such to be the fact. Dudley Hoyt is reported to have struck a splendid thing in the shape of quartz in Yuba. I have seen assays of rock from Yuba from $17 to $2,000 to the ton in gold, besides paying quantities of silver.

ABOUT INDIAN DIFFICULTIES.

The miners in Owyhee, and the ranchmen, are now in continual danger, and the travelers on the roads are at all times exposed to these savages. What do treaties, and hundreds and thousands of dollars amount to these red fiends? They are worse than useless, and only serve to help them to good outfits to fight the whites. The true mode is that adopted by our neighbors on British territory. They treat Indians as subjects to Queen Victoria, and so long as they behave themselves, treat them well, (but never give them annuities,) claim the soil as the prerogative of the crown, and then when the Indian breaks the law, the whole power of the government of the colony is used to arrest and punish the culprit. I could cite numerous instances of this, and will refer you to the cruise of the Thetis in 1850, the Tribune in 1856, and others before and since those dates.

SNOW DISAPPEARING—A NEW DISCOVERY.

The weather here is splendid, and dust is in our streets, but Rocky Bar is covered with about six feet of snow, and Owyhee is the same. In the Boise Basin the snow is fast disappearing, and the miners are commencing operations.

There is talk that a ledge having every appearance of a silver-bearing ledge has been found within the last few days about six miles from this place.

MARKETS IN ALTURAS.

A correspondent of the Statesman of the 27th ult., furnishes the following:

Provisions are abundant in market. Some scarcity of candles and kerosene oil. Flour is selling at $30 cwt.; beans, 35 cts.; butter, $1 25; sugar, 60@65 cts.; dried apples, 45@50 cts.; potatoes, 25@30 cts.; vegetables, 30 cts.; tobacco, $2; coffee, 65@70 cts.; tea, $2 50 to $3.

SUPPLIES TO VOLUNTEERS.

The Statesman gives an account of an enthusiastic war meeting on the 26th ult., at which the following supplies for the volunteers were subscribed:

Cash, $600; legal tenders $500; thirty-nine sacks of flour, valued at $420; merchandise, $245; blacksmithing subscribed, $40; one rifle, $25; besides from the people of the valley in cash and merchandise, $300. Total, $2,130. The committee to procure horses reported ten horses, valued at $800, and that they have procured the services of a pack train and three men to pack provisions for the volunteers on easy terms. Grand total, $2,930.

The committee further report that there are several persons whose names are not on subscription papers, from whom they can get at least in the aggregate three hundred dollars. Thus placing the matter of mounting and furnishing supplies for twenty-five men beyond a doubt. In addition to the above figures, the proceeds from the theatre, amounting to $575, may be added.

Montana News.

The subjoined items are from the Radiator of Jan. 27th:

Merchants were receiving Treasury Notes at 75 cents in lieu of dust. They were being purchased for dust at 80 and selling at 85 cents.

Wholesale rates—Flour—St. Louis, 25@30 cts.; Salt Lake, 25@26 cts.; Bacon, 64@65 cts.; Hams, 52@65 cts.; Lard, small cans, 65 cts.; Candles, 60@65 cts.; Sugar, 30@35 cts.; Coffee, $1 05@$1 07; Tea, $2 70@$3 00; Tobacco, ordinary, $3 50@$3 75—other brands, $4 00@$4 50; Butter, $1 20@$1 60; Beans, 44 cents.

The Virginia Post reports the snow in the Blackfoot country to be four and one half feet deep.

S. M. Irwin and wife have commenced performances at Virginia. Billy Sheppard is also there. Theatres at Virginia and Helena are operating. Five churches are also established in Virginia.

The Masonic fraternity has organized a Grand Lodge for Montana Territory.

The cost of the city government of Virginia is $14,000 per annum.

The mantle of Chief Magistracy fell upon the shoulders of Andrew Jackson. Under his administration, the huge monopoly of the United States Bank was crushed and South Carolina secession was "subjugated" without the loss of one man or the firing of a gun.—Review.

The mantle of Chief Magistracy fell upon the shoulders of James Buchanan. Under his Democratic administration, South Carolina secession was revived and carefully nurtured by Government patronage, till the enormous sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of lives and almost countless treasure, was required to "subjugate" it. Democracy then was quite as different from Democracy now, as loyalty is from treason. The measure of impudence sublimated, is filled when men who justify the treason of Jeff Davis, affect to admire the loyalty of Jackson.

ANOTHER FALSE STATEMENT.—The Federal organ says the State Journal sustains the President against Congress. This is the way in which the Journal does it:

Congress refuses by a vote of 108, the full Union strength of the lower House, against 37 Copperheads, to admit, "unwashed traitors," who, according to that Constitution which the President talks so fluently about maintaining, ought to be arrested, tried and executed on the scaffold for "levying war against the United States," instead of being admitted into Congress. On this point the loyal masses are unquestionably with Congress, but that is no reason why they should quarrel with the President so long as he adheres to the fundamental principles upon which he was elected.

One of our Copperhead cotemporaries, pleading for the life of Jeff Davis, says: "Three minutes may end that life upon the scaffold, but all the centuries to come cannot undo the deed."

We think if the deed were once done, the greater part of those who have received wounds or lost friends as the result of his crimes, would not be be particularly anxious to have the deed undone. The most of them would be likely to think that "three minutes" about as profitably spent as any they can remember.

The Alta of the 24th ult., says Edward Conway, who has charge of the British Columbia division of the Russian American Telegraph expedition, arrived yesterday on the steamer Pacific. Mr. Conway has penetrated to 57° north latitude and built 480 miles of line during the past season, commencing at New Westminster on Fraser river. Mr. Conway left a party to continue explorations during the winter, pushing as far north as possible. Everything thus far shadows forth the most favorable results for the success of the telegraph line.

Every plain girl has one consolation. If she is not a pretty young lady, she will, if she lives, be a pretty old one.

MARRIED:

At the residence of the bride's father, March 1st, 1866, by J. C. Snodgrass, J. P., Mr. Thomas J. Lucy to Miss Eliza A. Purdy, all of Linn county, Oregon.

In Hillsboro, Washington county, March 5th, 1866, by W. B. Chatfield, J. P., Mr. Noah Mult to Mrs. Sarah Jane Willoughby, all of Washington county, Oregon.

At Vancouver, W. T., March 7, 1866, by J. P. Smith, City Recorder, Garnett Tuck and Martha N. Theiss, both of Marion county, Oregon.

DON'T BELIEVE THIS.—If any one tell you that they know a better remedy for Coughs and colds than the Genuine Hall's Pulmonary Balsam, don't believe it. There is no better remedy, as any one who has ever used it can testify.

MONTANA.—Mr. H. D. Sanborn of Helena, Montana, who has been in the city some days, starts on his return this morning. Business called Mr. Sanborn to visit Salt Lake, and as he came through via Boise City, he will return by the same route. The people of Oregon have not so good an opinion of Montana as they should have, evidently. Mr. S. is well informed concerning all the various routes to be traveled in reaching Montana from the Pacific, as in his business he needs to be. Comparing all the routes, and laying aside all partiality, there is none so favorable as that presented via the Columbia river. By the Colorado the distance in land travel to Salt Lake is 380 miles from Callville. From San Francisco, overland from the Sacramento, is 784 miles, and from Salt Lake to Helena is 580 miles, making the distance to Helena 1,364 miles from San Francisco by land, a slow and tedious route to freight. The route via Virginia City, Star City and Boise City to Helena is 1,175 miles, all land travel from Sacramento. The lowest estimate possible, as the distance from Boise City to Helena is 500. The [illegible] from the Columbia river to Helena we have often [illegible], and all know, is but about 500 miles, and the entire route with the exception of the crossing of the Bitter Root mountains is a practical route for travel. The [illegible] men of San Francisco are now making an effort to get freight into Salt Lake at a less rate than it can be got in from St. Louis. As Salt Lake is 80 miles further from the markets of Montana, than is Umatilla or White Bluffs on the Columbia, does not Portland, and indeed every town on the Columbia, present better inducements to the [illegible] and miners of Montana in way of purchases than Salt Lake? The road is equally as good to the river. It only needs to be made a practicable [illegible] through the Bitter Root, and no very great [illegible] on that. The profits on $100,000 worth of [illegible] would more than pay for it. Besides, it is shown by the Internal Revenue Collector's report for 1865, that over $16,000,000 of treasure was taken out in Montana last year. This gold is worth from $16 to $18 50 per ounce, but it only sells for $[illegible] to $15 per ounce, and there is ten per cent. premium on gold exchange. This treasure goes out by the [illegible] round-about way of Salt Lake, where exchange on New York is 8 per cent., and on San Francisco, 5½ per cent. All mails, etc., for Oregon reach us now by Salt Lake and Sacramento. The people of Montana are trying to get a mail route through to the Columbia river from Boise City. The first mines of Montana, reached by the [illegible] from the Columbia river, are at what is [illegible] Creek, about 400 miles, which are nearly equal [illegible], and from there to the summit of the Rocky [illegible] and beyond, to Virginia City, Helena, and the [illegible] mines of Bannock, is a continuous chain of very [illegible] extensive diggings—paying in some instances from the roots of the grass, in both fine and coarse gold.

[illegible].—No thinking man can see the [illegible] of the "pretty waiter girl" vice, without [illegible] stringent legislation to put a stop to it. From the [illegible] of New York, the disease has been [illegible] the Pacific coast is infected by the [illegible]. Hundreds of the best men of the country [illegible] ruined financially and mentally on account of [illegible] many thefts and defalcations of the past [illegible] be traced to the prodigality and fast living [illegible] the "pretty waiter girl" saloons. The Police Commissioners of New York report [illegible] that city two hundred and seventy-three "[illegible] girl saloons," which employ 1,191 girls, [illegible] 29,950 persons, and that the latter [illegible] each week, $31,563. Somebody [illegible] the pains to make the calculation, says [illegible] the above figures to be correct, the total [illegible] in these saloons each week, is 200,060. [illegible] of Brooklyn, the yearly receipt of these [illegible] to the respectable figure of $1,841,284. [illegible] sprung into existence under the [illegible] and our readers well recollect [illegible] them through legislation. [illegible] but somehow vice found the [illegible]. The "concert" feature disappeared [illegible] the "pretty waiter girls" remaining [illegible] better than ever. The Com[illegible] continued [illegible] of the saloons [illegible] proved that intoxicating [illegible] was a sufficient attraction [illegible] of music. After this modification, not [illegible] to the "Concert Saloon Law," they have [illegible], while their influence and tendency [illegible] more and more deplorable." Some [illegible] at once, and vigorously executed, [illegible] these attractive schools [illegible] in future, as [illegible] the efforts of Mr. Kirchhoff, formerly of [illegible] in this State, whose letters to the German [illegible] the savage perpetrated upon [illegible] for that purpose, the Governments [illegible] the further emigration of [illegible].

[illegible] The [illegible] of 2d Ward, [illegible] of a [illegible] of A street. [illegible] is that the street is in such bad [illegible] be likely to breed a [illegible] is that [illegible] know of many streets in the city which are [illegible] the same thing. The Council has not authority [illegible] of this class. A street can be "improved" by the Council, but as far as filling up the holes [illegible] is a matter of impossibility. The Nic[illegible] will be [illegible] on First street to intersect [illegible] and as the nuisance complained of exists [illegible] and First, we should think it advisable [illegible] to petition the Council for its [illegible]. The [illegible] of many streets in [illegible] horrible, but we [illegible] not improving them, since [illegible] has been so "fluctuating" on the subject. [illegible] of dollars were expended in [illegible], some of these [illegible] with "notices" given by the Council. [illegible] were to be made of five feet width, now [illegible] said four foot crossing, are called [illegible] although not one year ago put down, [illegible]. On some, [illegible] be found [illegible] all of four or six, lest in [illegible] the neighbors on the same block are not [illegible] may have run his fence out to [illegible] in time, and the city [illegible] dirt, but let the public the [illegible], if they like, until the City Fathers [illegible] of A street, and even after that [illegible]. We should like to [illegible] petition for the [illegible] they were anxious to [illegible].

[illegible] HOOD.—We had the [illegible] yesterday [illegible]'s noted picture of Mount Hood, at [illegible] Mr. J. A. [illegible] in this city. The [illegible] by an Oregon gentleman lately at [illegible] the artist realizing a handsome sum from [illegible], and well may the Flag [illegible] our [illegible] of our grandest mountain is re[illegible]. The picture is large, being 8 feet 6 [illegible] framed in [illegible]. [illegible] that the [illegible] and truthful a specimen of art, and while [illegible] such a work naturally [illegible] seen by. The clouds taken from the [illegible] river bottom, the [illegible] in the most magnificent style, so very [illegible] with a fine [illegible], the lovely [illegible]. The [illegible] were most [illegible] by an advanced [illegible] of color, each [illegible] the whole is an [illegible] at least, [illegible]. We are glad to hear [illegible] from the [illegible] of his visit to [illegible], however, [illegible] a tour to Europe, and we [illegible] wherever he [illegible] have [illegible] him. Be[illegible] a view [illegible] by the same gentleman, [illegible] of art by these [illegible].

[illegible] A Ward is a printer, our Ward is [illegible]. Both are bricks. A few evenings [illegible] dispatches came to the office illustrated [illegible] of the national Capitol formed the left of the [illegible], then followed across the plains, over the [illegible] through valleys a view of the electrical [illegible] at "Arrigoni's." Yesterday a [illegible] of our Ward [illegible] us, of the robus[illegible] [illegible], that "mine host" of Arrigoni's has [illegible] the telegraph [illegible] with fruit, or at least the operators supplied [illegible] at the expense of [illegible]. The fruit was sweet, and not as desirable for [illegible] was wished, and the order is [illegible] to the [illegible], asking him that he furnish them with a [illegible] quality. The production was considered worthy [illegible], and will [illegible] attract [illegible] favorable [illegible].

[illegible] OF IT.—A jocose citizen of Portland lately took [illegible] a couple of fine fish for the use of his table. On returning, his wife stated that one of the fish was out [illegible] for me. "Well," said he, "what was done with the other two?" "But two came originally," was the [illegible]. "But, according to your own statement, there must have been three, I am sure of it—one flounder, [illegible], and one roast." The joke was seen, and the quality pronounced highly gratifying. And there is a moral to the joke—when you buy flounders and tom[illegible], be sure there is no excuse for calling them by any other name.

WILL GET HIS MONEY.—Mr. Bo[illegible], robbed at Umatilla last fall, at the time the Orleans Hotel safe was [illegible], will now get his money. The thieves, it will be remembered, deposited the money with Wells, Fargo & Co., of this city. [illegible] was obliged to get authority from the Court to call on Wells, Fargo & Co., and the [illegible] in the case was yesterday [illegible] in his favor in the Circuit Court. The thieves are still at Umatilla, whither they were taken from this city.

[illegible] OF MRS. PHELPS.—Numerous of our citizens, who feel that Mrs. Fannie Morgan Phelps should be the [illegible] of a benefit before taking her departure from [illegible], have tendered her the compliment. She has [illegible], and named Saturday evening as the time, at [illegible] the Theatre. We hope to see a full house on the occasion.

SNOW IN THE CASCADE RANGE.—Mr. Thomas Baker and a party of men who left this city about a week ago, for the Dalles by the trail with animals, returned last evening, [illegible] further than the Water-falls, above [illegible]. They report the trail [illegible] on account of snow and other obstructions.

THE MAYER CASE.—The case of Jacob Mayer was submitted to jury in U. S. District Court at three o'clock [illegible]. The jury failed to agree, after several hours [illegible], and were discharged. The jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal.

"LOST AND GONE."—The halliards to the plaza flag staff are again [illegible]. The whole [illegible] needs repairing, [illegible], or removing.

[illegible].—The jury in the case of Henry Wagner yesterday returned a verdict of "assault, being armed with [illegible]." Sentence was reserved.

[illegible].—The steamer Echo, in order that shippers may be [illegible] will leave [illegible] for [illegible] in the morning.

[illegible].—The weather yesterday was [illegible]

STATISTICS OF OREGON FOR 1865.—The State Department furnishes the following statistics, showing the agricultural results of 1865. We copy from the Statesman. The table as we find it is full of inaccuracies as may be found by footing up almost any of the columns, but whether the errors are in the amounts set against counties, or in footing up for the totals, we are ignorant. We have only corrected the wheat column, presuming that the totals are more likely to be correct than the other figures:

City Ordinance.

AN ORDINANCE to provide for cleaning streets.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. That the owners or occupants of lots upon any street already improved or which shall hereafter be improved under the present Charter of the City of Portland, be and they are hereby required, at their own expense, to clean the streets in front of their respective lot or lots, by scraping and sweeping on each Saturday of each week during the year.

SEC. 2. That in case any owners or occupants of any lot or lots upon any street already improved or which shall hereafter be improved, shall fail, refuse or neglect to clean the street in front of their respective lot or lots as provided in Section (1) of this ordinance, it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner to clean the same, as provided by this ordinance, the expense of which he shall collect from the owners or occupants of such lot or lots by suit before the Recorder.

Passed the Common Council February, 21st, 1866.

Attest: H. R. MEEKER,
Auditor and Clerk.

Approved, February 22d, 1866.

ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

PACIFIC INSURANCE COMPANY!

IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE of the State of California entitled "An Act concerning Corporations," passed April 22d, 1850, the Pacific Insurance Company of San Francisco makes the following Annual Report:

I.—The amount of the Capital Stock of this Company is SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS, and paid in GOLD..............$750,000

II.—The amount of the Assets is ONE MILLION AND FIFTY-ONE THOUSAND, FOUR HUNDRED AND TWENTY DOLLARS AND THIRTY-SEVEN CENTS. $1,051,420 37

III.—The Company has NO DEBTS.

IV.—The amount of Insurance effected during the year, and which remained in force December 31st, 1865:

Fire..............$12,07[illegible],040
Marine..............484,408

This Company commenced underwriting Marine Risks August 1st, 1865.

V.—This Company Insures against the following risks, viz: BUILDINGS, HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, MERCHANDISE, RENTS, LEASE-HOLDS, VESSELS IN PORT and THEIR CARGOES, and OTHER PERSONAL PROPERTY, AGAINST LOSS OR DAMAGE BY FIRE. Also, on CARGOES, TREASURE, COMMISSIONS, PROFITS and WAR RISKS, and ON ALL MARINE AND INLAND NAVIGATION RISKS, TO AND FROM ALL PORTS IN THE WORLD.

VI.—This Company will take on any FIRST-CLASS RISK not to exceed $75,000 (the limit fixed by law), and on all large risks will reinsure to an extent consistent with PRUDENCE in other RESPONSIBLE COMPANIES.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supersede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of Impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

The Days of the Giants in the United States Senate

CLAY, CALHOUN AND WEBSTER

A correspondent of the Times and Herald of Chicago, who witnessed the United States Senate in the "days of the Giants," furnishes from Washington the following graphic picture of "Auld lang syne" in that city:

Gibbon relates the celebrated story of the Seven Sleepers. During a cruel persecution at Ephesus seven noble youths concealed themselves in a cave. They immediately, so goes the legend, fell into a sleep, which was miraculously prolonged for one hundred and eighty seven years. On awakening, they entered the city, but found everywhere Christians so degenerated, churches so conformed to the world, all, in short, so changed that they burst into tears and prayed to God that they might return to their slumbers again. Such are my feelings as I sit here and look upon this body and listen to their debates with the light of other days around me. Only a few years ago I occupied this very seat, and heard with pleasure the great men of the land deliberating for the general weal of the whole nation. Now, how many seats are vacant! and the discussions are about the late war, the treatment of rebellion and the reconstruction of a shattered Union—topics the very sound of which might cause the founders of this great republic to turn in their coffins.

Among many sad reflections there is one which especially depresses my heart as I look down on this conclave of grave, venerable and patriotic Senators. It is, that there survives not a single one of those statesmen whose voices used to be heard and felt throughout the whole country. Once it was a great privilege to pass a morning here, when "there were giants in the land." Yonder reposed, in silent grandeur, the massive form of Webster. To his right, taking snuff and conversing pleasantly with his neighbors, was the light, graceful person of Clay; while, far to the left, dark, [illegible], with keen flashing eyes, was that incarnation of dignity and severe logic, Calhoun, looking like a cast-iron man. When either of these men were to speak the chamber was crowded early in the day, and everybody studied their speeches. And with reason, for in genius and true parliamentary eloquence they were men of pre-eminent greatness, differing, intellectually and morally, very much, as they did in their personal appearance.

So remarkable were the head and figure of the Massachusetts Senator, that when he was in London the porters and day laborers in the street used to cease from their work to gaze at him; and here, each day, as he entered the Senate, all eyes converged toward "the man" and the whisper was heard on all sides, in the galleries, "That is he." Everything in his presence was imperial. For myself, I never looked upon that brow, that majestic aspect, those "Atlantean shoulders, fit to bear the weight of mighty monarchies;" that face on which "deliberation sat, and public care," without a something, I know not what, of awe and of reverence, which I could not shake off, even in familiar conversation with him. As a writer, his style is the very best in our language; not so elaborated as Dr. Channing's, but easier, more flowing and transparent. Mrs. Fanny Kemble told me that her father, a man of exquisite taste, used often to say to her, "Come, let us read Webster, his style does me good." In many passages, especially in his argument on the trial of the Knapps, and in his reply to General Hayne, that was true of him which was said of Luther—"His words are half battles." But he was a [illegible] ponderous speaker. In perorations of his speech on Foote's resolutions, he glowed as with ethereal fire; but generally he was dull, heavy, [illegible]. He was a perfect master of language. Many public speakers find words most unmanageable things. At his command, the best, fittest phrases came and fell into perfect phalanx. His logic was perfect, also, demolishing everything like error, "hammering away," "smashing everything in his path" (to use the pithy words of our two great Generals), but it was not "logic on fire," and his orations will always receive more admiration when read than they did when delivered. His address at the completion of the Bunker Hill Monument is itself a monument of classical taste, of profound thought, of elevated statesmanship, which will outlast the solid granite. Yet Choate, who was on the platform with him, tells us he never suffered more in his life, the delivery was such a farce.

Much has been said as to the morality of Webster, but de mortuis nil nisi bonum." Of one trait in his character I can testify. I mean his great reverence for the Bible. When I first came to this city I found that buying male slaves and sending them South was a regular business, and I was so shocked that I went to Washington to see if anything could be done to stop so nefarious a traffic. In conversing with him on the subject of slavery I found that he was most anxious that some measure should be inaugurated for its gradual abolition. He confessed, however, that he could not see any remedy, and thought it a malum immedicabile. But whenever I quoted a passage from the Word of God, he always received it as the truth to which all should yield entire obedience.

In this reverent submission to the secret oracles I [illegible] to say Calhoun was as inferior to Webster as he was superior to him in the unimpeachable purity of his moral character. I knew him well, both in Washington and Fort Hill, his residence in South Carolina, and I never knew a man more upright, conscientious and virtuous. He was too, a [illegible] irregular attendant of the Episcopal Church, in [illegible], though never a communicant in any church. But his intellectual pride and independence made him intolerant of any authority higher than his own reason. He professed to believe in the inspiration of the Scriptures, but, forgetting the important part of knowledge which informs us of the limitation of the human understanding, [illegible] of faith, lest it should be credulity, he [illegible] to inquire as to every doctrine, not whether it was comfortable to God's will, but to his own; loving truth, yet loving system more than truth; satisfying himself that he had established his point, if he could show the objections to any one position, without considering those to all others; in short, never suspecting his own judgment, always confident in his own decisions, and therefore resolved that no argument could be adduced which might change his opinions, he knew nothing of that humble, teachable spirit which is the great element in Christian faith. He sincerely regarded slavery as a Divine and beneficent institution. "The negro and the white man," said he to me, "are both elevated by it."

If I quoted a text which expressed his views he would give it his hearty assent, and dwell upon its certainty; but if it condemned his cherished convictions he as promptly corrected it. I was with him during his last illness, and upon one occasion, when I cited that command, "Honor all men," he turned quickly to me and said, "What, honor all men? Negroes, impossible; God never said that. God cannot require me to honor the man in the White House, nor the politicians, the selfish demagogues now in both Houses of Congress, who are bringing ruin on the country."

Of his power of conversation a great many have spoken; but in fact, he never conversed; he harangued as earnestly when alone with you as when in the legislative halls. He loved the society of young men, and won their hearts by the courtesy and condescension with which he listened to them. It was, however, only that politeness which was a striking trait in his character. If he paused to listen, it was but the interval between the flashes of lightning, which soon blaze out again, smiting and shivering all opposition.

As an orator he was a perfect contrast to Webster. It is well known to his friends that he proposed Demosthenes as his model and studied closely those Grecian masterpieces to which all who know what eloquence means, how it is high above mere rhetoric as the heavens are above mere earth, will ever look up in admiration and rapture. If, in his well-known remark about "action" as the essential ingredient in speaking, Demosthenes meant graceful gesticulations, the South Carolinian was utterly defective. There was something stiff, angular, awkward in his manner. But nobody, unless it be a teacher of rhetoric, can ever thus degrade those words of deep and noble wisdom. No, again, no. It was not by the puerile tricks and starts of an accomplished declaimer that the Athenian,

"Wielding at will the fierce democracy,
Shook the arsenal and fulminated over Greece,
To Macedon and Artaxerxes' throne."

By "action" he meant delivery—earnest, impassioned delivery—in which the whole soul is fused into every utterance, and which cannot live and glow with anything artificial than fire and straw can dwell together in a heated oven. Who can listen to a more finished rhetorician than Everett? His face and person were pleasing. Every movement had been practiced. His beautiful passages filled the mind with admiration and delight. But whoever felt his heart burn within him who was ever conscious of that 'something immense and infinite' of which Quintilian speaks who ever found himself transported, melted to tears, fired to enthusiasm while listening to his elaborate compositions? In straightforward, close linked argument, in a noble contempt for all trappings and decorations, in condensation, in a vocabulary terse and emphatic, in energy, vehemence, passion, Calhoun closely resembled his illustrious model, while in all the moral qualifications as a great orator he rose immeasurably above him; for even his enemies confessed that he possessed a courage which no opposition could shake, and an integrity which no temptation could corrupt.

In mental greatness, in learning, in deep thought and all the attributes of the highest order of genius, Clay was inferior to his two great contemporaries. But in the physical combinations, in all the natural, soul stirring orator, he far surpassed them both. His mouth, that most expressive feature, was an organ created by God for the conduit of large and heroic thoughts. Then what clear blue eyes, now calm in their azure depths, then laughing in genial mirth, and then, when he was thoroughly roused up, sparkling, almost blazing! In his whole countenance, what play of generous feelings, the soul of honor, friendship, chivalry, breathing in his face! Above all, that magnificent voice—at one moment soft and breezy, presently swelling until it beat the vault of the roof, and reverberating far beyond the walls of the chamber away into the adjoining rooms and recesses! Rufus Choate had no superior at home, but going to Washington as a United States Senator, he on one occasion drew upon himself a single broadside from the Kentucky orator and it so frightened him that he was afterward almost silent, crest fallen and, to employ the own favorite phrase 'utterly flabbergasted.' Every body remembers Clay's duel with Randolph. On his last journey North, in an almost dying condition the Virginian was carried into the Senate Chamber. Clay was speaking. "Stop," said the sick man to those who bore him, "stop, let me hear the voice. I came here to hear that voice once more before I die." The grace and beauty of Clay's elocution was consummate; his whole being informed with his subject and instinct with the love of truth. And his warm, gushing sympathies seldom failed to draw you to him and bear you along with him, causing you to feel that "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin." The last time I heard him was at a meeting of the Colonization Society. As he reclined in the chair he seemed to be an old man, "broken with the storms of state." But when he arose and spoke there was no traces of years upon him. All felt that his soul was still erect and young, and that, as an orator, his eye was not dimmed, or the force and vehemence of his strength abated.

I had intended to say something of his death, but this communication is already too extended. His father was a Baptist minister, and the son never forgot "the faithful sayings" which he learned from that father. And though he betrayed old and infirmity, as to religion, saying to Dr Curtis, in Charleston, that "a public man ought to join no church if he wished to be popular" (a sentiment, by the way, in which thousands not without the candor to confess it), and after he had identified himself with a church, frequenting a theatre; yet he lingered long under the salutary discipline of a sick room, his last pillow was wet with penitential tears, and of the three great composers, he alone departed confessing himself a sinner, and reposing all his confidence upon the blood and righteousness of the Redeemer.

I sit here and look at the places that once knew these three men, but know them no more, and I say—O, that they were with us yet! Whatever their errors once, were they now living, I believe that in this crisis of our country's history, counsels would be those of moderation, wisdom and patriotism. Whatever their differences in other days, had they been spared I am confident that after the terrible lessons of the last four years they would have buried all animosities, and, with one heart and one mind, have sought to quell the passions of the hour, and to lay broadly and deeply the foundation of a Union harmony, liberty and prosperity which nothing could again disturb. Their absence at a time like this fills me with regret and sadness. But "the Lord reigneth." "In the year when King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord high and lifted up." This prophet mourned for the loss of a wise and able prince, but he found consolation by raising his eyes to that King who sits exalted in the heavens, upon the throne of the universe, ordering all events for his glory, and for the accomplishment of unerring wisdom and unchanging love.

There is a volume of political philosophy in the following from a recent Southern letter:

"In the stage between Augusta and Milledgeville, I rode with two gentlemen of considerable local weight and prominence, who were both anti-Secessionists in 1860–61. They talked of the approaching convention and of its probable action in redistricting the State for representatives. 'Well, Colonel,' said the younger, himself a man of over forty years—'Well, Colonel, what will be our proper course when we are once more fully restored to the Union?' The answer came, after a moment's consideration—'We must strike hands with the Democratic party of the North, and manage them as we have done.' There was a pause while we rattled down the hill, and then the questioner responded. 'That's, just it, they were ready enough to give us control if we gave them the offices, and I reckon they've not changed very much yet.' There was then conversation on other matters, but half an hour later, after a mile or so of silence, the Colonel suddenly resumed, 'Yes sir; our duty is plain; we shall be without weight, now that slavery is gone, unless we do join hands with them; Andy Johnson will want a re election, and the united Democratic party must take him up; it shall be a fair decision—we want the power and they want the spoils.'"

The "Colonel," whatever else may be said of him, knows the Democratic party through and through. The only present difficulty in his scheme is that the North understands it perfectly, and that in consequence the Democracy, though ready and willing to be "managed," hasn't succeeded lately in getting many of those "offices" which are one element in the bargain.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.—The following description of the significance of the different parts of the American flag will be interesting to many. It was written by a member of the Committee of the Continental Congress, appointed to design a flag for the young republic, when the matter was before that body, and recently reproduced by A. C. Street, Esq., in a lecture on the Battle of Saratoga:

The stars of the new flag represent the new constellation of States rising in the West. The idea was taken from the constellation of Lyra, which, in the land of Orpheus, signifies harmony. The blue in the field, was taken from the edge of the Covenanter's banner in Scotland, significant of the league covenant of the United Colonies against oppression, incidentally involving the virtues of vigilance, perseverance and justice. The stars were disposed in a circle, symbolizing the perpetuity of the Union; the ring, like the circling serpent of the Egyptians, signifying eternity. The thirteen stripes showed with the stars, the number of the United Colonies, and denoted the subordination of the States to the Union, as well as equality among themselves. The whole was the blending of the various flags previous to the Union; viz. the red flags of the army, and the white ones of the floating batteries. The red color, which in Roman days was the signal of defiance, denoted daring; and the white, purity.

THE SOUTHERN PAPERS.—The newspapers of the South are justly supposed to reflect Southern sentiments; and so far as the late rebellious States are concerned, they indicate very correctly their rebellious spirit and treasonable purpose. We have all the time contended that the rebels of the whole South are full of the spirit of disloyalty, overflowing with hatred of the Government, and as much bent upon the ruin of the country as they were in 1862. Any who doubt these statements will have all their doubts removed if they will read the Southern rebel papers. They all breathe the spirit of rebellion, they stab the Government, and they find fault with all who are in authority. They pretend to be pleased with the President's plan of reconstruction, but all that is with a view to recover their property to obtain pardon and to get into power again. The rebel leaders of the South, who desire to get into Congress and to practice a cheat upon the loyal men of the country, would do well to suppress the publication of all the Southern papers. As long as these are circulated freely, men of sense can and will see where they are drifting to, and what they are aiming at. They are aiming to accomplish by legislation what they failed to do upon the field of carnage—the ruin of the country.—Knoxville Whig, Jan. 10th.

GREAT CITIES IN THE NIGHT.—Lord Macauley had a singular taste for walking though the deserted streets of the great metropolis in the hours when the citizens were fast asleep and all was hushed. Those were the hours, he used to remark for reflection and thought—when the utter loneliness which is peculiar at midnight to great cities steals over the meditating wayfarer apparently solitary and alone in the world. Dr. John son possessed a similar taste, and Charles Dickens is singularly fond of old city streets and alleys when they are emptied of the busy throng that fill them in the day time.

REMARKABLE MEMORY.—The Battle Creek Journal says:

A wild man has been discovered in a forest in Clearfield county, Tennessee. He was covered all over with down, and when captured was able to speak only one word—"draft" he had forgotten all the rest of the English language, and manifested no recollection of his former state until election day, when he voted for the Democratic ticket with avidity.

The rebel General Bushrod R. Johnson has settled down in Nashville as a real estate agent. Houses to let. Two years ago he wanted to be "let alone."

Artemus Ward says, that as a Son of Temperance he believes in temperance hotels though as a general thing, they sell poorer liquors than the other sort.

It is now stated that Rev. Alexander Campbell is not dead, but is still living in Western Virginia. The name of the theologian deceased was Duncan Campbell, who was also a man of much note.

Jeff Davis is said to be disgusted and indignant at the delay in his trial and the consequent prolongation of his imprisonment. It must be a terrible sight, "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

William Lloyd Garrison, in his editorial valedictory, says he began the publication of the Liberator without a subscriber, and ends it without a farthing, as the pecuniary result of the patronage extended to it during thirty five years of unremitted labor.

A jailor in a Western State had received strict orders not to keep his prisoners in solitary confinement. Once, when he had but two in charge, one escaped, and he was obliged in consequence to kick the other out of doors, in order to comply with the regulation.

In peeling onions put a large needle in the mouth, half in half out. The needle attracts the oily juice of the bulb and any number may be peeled without affecting the eyes. So says the Prairie Farmer. Whether it is true or not, our onion peeling readers may know by trying.

A preacher whose text led him to speak of the prophet Jonah, among other things said "I am of the opinion Jonah was an old man, neither smoking nor chewing, from the fact that the fish retained him so long in his stomach. If the fish had swallowed the house we are worshiping in he would no doubt have vomited himself to death."

A short time ago a lady in London complained to a minister of the Episcopal church that he had engaged as his curate the son of her upholster, and said, "I do not think it right for such a person to teach me Christianity." "Madam," replied the clergyman, "I think that it is very fitting that the son of an upholsterer should tell you about the carpenter's son."

"I have just found out," said an old veteran to us, the other day, "why Sherman would not allow rations of beans to be issued to his soldiers in the Georgia campaign." "Well, what was the reason?" was asked. "Because he was afraid old Joe Johnston would get wind of his movements,' was the answer.

A cool robbery of government property was attempted a few days ago, at Mobile. A man representing himself as a government agent, drove up with a dray passed the guards, and loading the vehicle with blankets, drove off. Two civilian employees suspecting something wrong, followed and had him arrested.

Philip Mills, an old Waterloo veteran, was buried in Albany, N. Y., on the 18th of January last. He was one of the few who survived that memorable field, and he received a silver medal from the British Government for his bravery on that occasion. During the Prince of Wales' visit to this country the old hero was introduced to him.

The Mobile Advertiser states that the markets there are fairly glutted with provisions and country produce, and the busy hum and bustle of the throng in attendance on market days reminds them of the good old days of yore, when market baskets went home brimming full and the people "lived on the fat of the land." Trade is represented as flush in all branches, and there is every evidence that "the good time is coming."

JOHNSON'S SUPPORTERS IN TENNESSEE.—A Nashville dispatch of Jan. 31st gives the following:

Sometime since a statement was sent from this city through the agency of the Associated Press that a call had been issued for a meeting for the 22d of February to sustain the policy of President Johnson, and that said call was signed by the conservative members of the Legislature and prominent Union men throughout the State. This statement was made honestly and without any desire to misrepresent; but it is time the loyal people of the country should know the real object of this contemplated meeting. So far as I can see every disloyal paper throughout the State has published the call and editorially endorsed it. One half of the signatures to the call are intensely Copperhead members of the Legislature, who have fought inch by inch against every measure introduced into that body for keeping power out of the hands of rebels and traitors. Three-fourths of those remaining have never been identified with the Union party of the State. Several were active participants in the rebellion, and the half dozen real Union men whose names are appended to the call to-day have already declared they signed it under the belief that the meeting was to be an old fashioned 22d of February celebration, without any particular object whatever. The meeting will be nothing more or less than a gathering of all the disloyal classes in the State to denounce the loyal Government of the State and abuse good members who are representing 25,000 true Union soldiers who have from the beginning stood firmly by the general cause of the nation and human freedom. Perhaps nothing recalls so clearly the object of this intended gathering as the fact that a dirty rebel organ in this city has a leader this morning advising President Johnson to crush the present loyal State Government, and hinting that that meeting may be used to initiate a movement for the revolutionizing of the State. Thus it is that men propose to sustain the President, by overturning the loyal Government of the State of Tennessee, which was, through every stage of its formation, the work of Andrew Johnson's own hand.

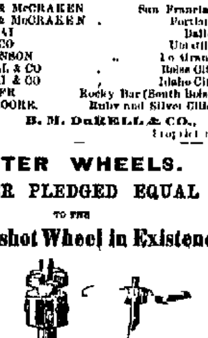
WATER WHEELS.
POWER PLEDGED EQUAL TO THE
Best Overshot Wheel in Existence.

Prices Greatly Reduced!



Prices Greatly Reduced!

LEFFEL'S American Double Turbine Water Wheel

IS NOW MANUFACTURED BY THE OREGON IRON Works, in the city of Portland, and orders for the same can be filled immediately. We have a small supply of the different sizes, from 10 inches to 48 inches in diameter. That we may know the proper sized wheel you require, measure your water in the following way. Take the width of the stream, the average depth, and the distance it flows in a minute.

All the wheels now in use give universal satisfaction. Both the construction of the wheel and its performance, commend it to the better judgment of all minds capable of appreciating the highest development of mechanical construction. Therefore it has conquered the most violent opposition.

This wheel is especially adapted to mining purposes. It is light, and can be easily packed into the mountains. Wheels weighing from 100 to 300 pounds will yield from 10 to 40 horse power, under a head of 25 or 30 feet. They are the cheapest wheel to set up known, as they are so arranged as to produce the greatest power possible from the water used.

The prices of these wheels have now been reduced to the ability of all. Come and see them or send for a circular to

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!
The Remedy for Curing
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
Asthma, Croup,
Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

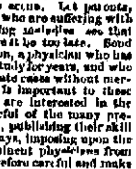
TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr Gibbon's Dispensary.

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases of years standing and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.



Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, shrunken and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, illustrating their fate for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands invite until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are affected, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all disease in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emission, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. DR. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. by Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
